SET YOUR SIGHTS ON A FALL BIG GAME HUNT!

Young guns in Oregon will get a number of special big game hunts to apply for in 2022. The new 2022 Oregon Big Game Regulations are out, and there are many youth hunts for kids only, plus guaranteed first-time tags in the general big game tag drawing again in 2022.

Also, the Mentored Youth Hunter Program allows kids who haven't yet passed Hunter Education to hunt under the close supervision of an adult. OHA recently helped raise the upper age limit for mentoring to 15.

Oregon will offer fall youth hunts again this coming season for deer, elk and antelope. The new regulations list eight youth buck deer hunts, 29 youth antlerless deer hunts 52 youth elk hunts, and four youth antelope hunts, including a Hart Mountain Refuge hunt. The deadline to apply is May 15.

Oregon's "first-time hunter" program allows a hunter under age 18 who is unsuccessful in the controlled hunt drawing for deer or elk tags to reapply for a controlled hunt having a minimum number of tags and be guaranteed a first-time tag.

For more details about Oregon's First-Time Hunter program, which OHA helped create, and Oregon's Mentored Youth Hunter Program for kids ages 9 through 15, see the 2022 Oregon Big Game Regulations in outdoor stores or at MyODFW.com

Oregon's youth hunts and the Mentored Youth Hunter Program offer kids great opportunities to hunt big game.

OHA helps raise age limit for mentoring

Youths up to age 16 are now eligible to participate in the Mentored Youth Hunter Program thanks to a new law OHA introduced and helped pass.

The age limit used to be 14, but kids can participate in the program until they turn 16.

The Mentor Program has been a big success for kids through middle school age, and OHA also wanted busy high school students to be able to try hunting under the close watch of a licensed adult, at least until they're old enough to drive themselves to a Hunter Education class or field event.

HYPOTHERMIA: THE SILENT KILLER OF THE OUTDOORS

Hypothermia happens when your core body temperature becomes colder than it should be – just the opposite of when you are sick and have a fever. Hunters are at higher risk for hypothermia because they are often outside in cold, wet, and windy conditions. Wet or damp clothes (from rain, sweat, or falling in a stream or lake) increase this risk, particularly if it is windy outside. Every hunter should know how to prevent hypothermia, recognize its symptoms and treat it.

Hypothermia prevention, symptoms and treatment

Prevention:

- Dress properly – avoid cotton clothing
- Avoid risky weather conditions
- Dry out as quickly as you can when you get wet
- Eat high-calorie foods to produce body heat

Symptoms

- Uncontrolled shivering
- Slow, slurred speech
- Lack of movement, stumbling and/or dropping things
- Strange behavior (such as removing clothing)
- Memory loss

It's OK to be a cool dude, but there comes a time to get warm and dry.

- Sleepiness or unconsciousness

Treatment

- Find shelter immediately – do not wait!
- Replace wet clothing with dry clothing
- Give warm liquids, but no alcohol or caffeine
- Warm with blankets or another's body heat
- Warm with canteens of hot water placed against the body

WILDLIFE CLOSE-UP

Chukars

The chukar is a game bird found in eastern Oregon. Chukars were brought to Oregon from India in 1951.

These birds, which are relatives of partridges, are larger than quail, but smaller than pheasants. They have plump bodies, short tails and short, red beaks for picking up seeds. Their bodies are often gray with black and white patches on their faces and wings.

Chukars have round wings and large breast muscles that help them to escape predators with short, fast bursts of flight.

Hunters find that chukars are difficult to hunt because they run uphill and then fly down quickly. Even though chukars are hard to hunt, they are one of Oregon's most harvested upland game birds.

Their favorite food is cheat grass (the short, curly yellow grass you see in this photo), but they can be seen feeding on waste grain at the edges of planted fields near their habitat.

How many chukars do you see? We thought we counted eight.

Some kids were fortunate enough to take birds home.

KIDS BAG BIRDS AT YOUTH HUNTS

Oregon youngsters got a chance to earn their wings last fall at youth upland bird hunts hosted by the Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife and OHA at locations around the state. Wild birds live at many of the hunt areas, and more birds were released for the youth hunts.

The pheasants are raised and released with money that hunters pay for their state Upland Game Bird Stamps. The Oregon Hunters Association and other hunting groups also buy birds to give kids more chances in the field.

OHA and other sportsmen's groups cook breakfast and lunch for young hunters and their families, and some of these folks and their dogs go out in the field with kids to help them find birds. Besides the pheasants that are released, kids can take wild birds like doves and quail that are in season.

OHA members and their dogs helped out at youth hunts.

Sign up now for Hunter Education!

If you haven't passed Hunter Education yet and you plan to hunt with your own licenses and tags this fall, you need to get in a class now! Oregon's Hunter Education course is required for all first-time hunters under the age of 18. It's hard to find a class by fall, so don't wait! 10 COMMANDMENTS OF SHOOTING SAFETY

1. Control the direction of your firearm's muzzle. Carry your firearm safely, keeping the safety on until ready to shoot. Keep your finger off the trigger until ready to shoot.
2. Identify your target and what is beyond it. Know the identifying features of the game you hunt.
3. Treat every firearm as if it is loaded.
4. Be sure the barrel and action are clear of obstructions and that you have only ammunition of the proper size for the firearm you are carrying.
5. Unload firearms when not in use. Leave actions open. Firearms should be cased and unloaded while in a vehicle traveling to and from shooting areas.
6. Never point a firearm at anything you do not want to shoot. Avoid all horseplay with a firearm.
7. Never climb or jump with a loaded firearm. Never pull a firearm toward you by the muzzle.
8. Never fire a bullet at a flat, hard surface or water. With targets, be sure your backstop is adequate.
9. Store guns and ammunition separately in locked spaces out of reach of children and careless adults.
10. Avoid alcoholic beverages and drugs before or during shooting.

Elk

Elk are tough and hardy animals that usually get through Oregon's winters just fine. They can get themselves in trouble, though, when they raid farmers' haystacks and wreck their pastures and fences. Sometimes hunting groups like OHA provide feed to lure the elk away from farmland and keep them out of trouble.

GOOD SHOTS FROM OREGON'S YOUNG GUNS

Crue Sumner of Prineville waited in a blind with his dad who took this mule deer with a bow last September.

Madelyn Roy of Grants Pass took this pheasant at the Denman Wildlife Area youth hunt last year.
